EDUCATION IN CUBA

charge of this work believes that by June once rolls of the public schools of Cuba to be on the island of school age. This work has all been done by one man in less than four months. He wrote a school law from General Brooke's headquarters. He started, and is still working, on the assumption that Cuban children are like all other children in the world, and that education is secured best by the same system, wherever it is needed. He is working without saary, and for the enthuslasm he has in the work, and he says he will give five years of his time and money to accomplish the end he has in view, which is the establishment of a modern system of public schools on the Island of Cuba. This man is Alexis E. Frye, well known in New England and California as a teacher and as the author of a number of school text books.

ASTHMA.

This wonderful remedy not only cures CONSUMPTION, but all other diseases of the respiratory organs, Asthma, Bronchitis, La Grippe, etc.

Dr. Chas. Drennen of Birmingham, Ala., says: "I regard it as wonderful a discovery as has come to my notice in my 30 years' practice."

Read what a Maryland man says of Tincture Amal as a cure for Asthma:

This man is Alexis E. Frye, well known in New England and California as a teacher and as the auther of a number of school text books.

Mr. Frye was an appointee of General Brooke's, but General Wood has allowed Mr. Frye work to proceed without interruption, and while the governor has not yet reached the matter of public education in detail, he has thus given tacit approval at least to what Mr. Frye has done so far. In fact, it would be rather difficult, even if it was considered desirable, to tear down the structure this energetic man has built up, for his work has been entitied and its results. He has been criticised by diplomatic Americans for work-ing without a salary, for they claim that the Cubans will suspect there are other objects to gain which do not appear on the surface. To satisfy these critics, Mr. Frye accepted a salary of $1,000 a year and then turned around and donated each month's pay to some charity in Cuba. He was given two assistants, whose salaries were fixed at $2,400 a year each. He insisted that he should get no more, and his salary was reduced to $2,400. He is a wealthy man, and he still insists upon giving even this $2,400 to Cuban charities. This is his hobby and no one seems able to convince him he is possibly wrong from a policy point of view.

A Safeguard of Liberty.

"The evolution of time," he said, "has proved that education is the only safeguard of a nation. The United States has promised independence to the Cuban people, and as a safeguard of their liberty is founding a system of public schools in every part of good salaries are paid to the teachers; all pupils are entitled to equal care and in-struction, and a teacher who accepts pay in any form except, the regular salary, for-feits his position. sits his position.

"Is English to be taught in the schools?" System of Teaching.

"The Cuban children are to be taught in their own language. This is the quickest and best means of unfolding their minds, and it brings to the school room native men and women who are in perfect sympathy with Cuban childhood, with its tendencies, with Cuban childhood, with its tendencies, its customs, its sensibilities. Not only does this plan promise the best result for the pupils, but it also encourages thousands of young men and women to fit themselves fer educational work. Most of these teachers enter the school room without experience, and many of them with scanty education, but with unbounded enthusiasm. The great work in the island will be the training of this army of teachers in the school room, for it is not possible to reach these teachers through the regular normal schools. The best teachers, therefore, will be selected and prepared to visit towns in all parts of the island, to gather together the teachers for evening instruction in both subject matter and methods of teaching. Temporary normal schools will also be provided for the teachers during vacation periods. Pamphlets upon methods of teaching are being prepared for weekly distribution to all schools.

"Meanwhile, with an eye to the future,

"Meanwhile, with an eye to the future, plans are being made to establish permanent normal schools, into which, as instructors, will be gathered such teachers as show the greatest skill this year in helping teachers now in the public schools. With all these advantages teachers are instructed to prepare for examination with instructed to prepare for examination with a view to receiving certificates before next September. Thereafter certificates of qualification will be required. The Cuban people are eager to learn English, and special teachers will be provided this year, but all teachers are instructed to begit at once the study of this branch in preparation for the later teaching." the later teaching."
"How does the pay of these teachers compare with the pay of teachers in the United States?"

Paid Good Salaries.

"In fixing the salaries of teachers in Cuba it was necessary to keep in mind former conditions in the island, especially that condition which provided a dwelling for the family of the teacher. To, Americans, the family of the teacher. To, Americans, accustomed to their own mode of living, and also in view of the fact that most of the teachers in Cuba have received but little training for their work, the salaries paid in the island will seem very high. Thus in Havana the lowest salary paid to a public school teacher ($000) is 25 per cent above the average of the highest salaries paid in fifteen of the largest cities of the United States. Seven other cities in Cuba receive exactly this average of highest salaries in the same great cities of our country, while the lowest salary paid to a regular teacher in the public schools of Cuba is $600 per year. Thus the best young men and women of Cuba are encouraged to join in this work."

"Did the Cubans have any school buildings?"

young men and wonten of Caba are encouraged to join in this work."

"Did the Cubans have any school buildings?"

"To one who is accustomed," said Mr. Frye, "to see the beautiful school buildings in the large cities of the United States and the pretty country schools scattered over it, the Island of Cuba presents a sad picture. With over two hundred thousand children of school age, and with a compulsory attendance law, there is scarcely a dollar's worth of public school property. Even in the cities it is difficult to find vacant buildings in good sanitary surroundings and with good conditions as to light and ventilation. In the rural districts the condition is still worse, for in many parts of the island there is absolutely no place for a school, and the people who are now pushing out over the deserted farms are at present scarcely able to provide homes.

"Under these circumstances plans are being made to construct school houses at the expense of the state, and it is hoped that little school buildings, constructed on modern plans, will soon form the nucleus of every Cuban village. Meanwhile teachers will be provided and supplies sent to every point where not less than fifteen children can be gathered into a group under some temporary shelter. What an opportunity is here given to the hundreds of wealthy and generous people of the United States to present to each of the small villages of Cuba the amount (about $500) necessary to found a permanent school, and thus relieve the island of this part of the great expense of founding a school system."

How the Money is Raised.

How the Money is Raised. "How is money provided for the schools?" "The new school law of Cuba is unique a state paper which, after compelling every child of school age to attend a public school, places a system of such schools at the disposal of the people without one cent of direct tax and without one cent of local expense. providing, as it does, the entire amount from the receipts of the custom houses. Under this law the state pays the salaries of teachers and janitors, the rent of buildings, the cost of books, ordinary supplies and school furniture, and all salaries for supervision, and it even proposes to begin the erection of school buildings. "The future of the school work in Cuba is bright, because the peoople want education; intelligent men and women are joining heartily in the work; the state is providing generously for equipment; the industrial conditions of the island are promising; the children are naturally bright and intelligent; and as the years roll by the Cuban receive accuracy for the salary and the places a system of such schools at the dis-ligent; and as the years roll by the Cuban people cannot fail to become more and more enthusiastic, as those who are now in the schools grow to be the men and women who are to rule the destinles of the island."

system of public schools in every part of the island. Through all this work runs a sirgle purpose: To prepare a nation for self-government. The United States will fulfill its pledge to the Cuban people, and at the proper time intrust to their hands the future of their island. I believe this thoroughly."

When asked what he had found here in the way of a school system, he said:

"Before the late war, and even continuing till December past, it was the custom in Cuba to furnish houses, at public expense, as dwellings for the families of teachers, with one room to be used for a school during the day. In addition to receiving free rent and the promise of a salary, teachers were allowed to collect fees from pupils. The Cuban people themselves see clearly the evil effects of such a system and welcome the changes now being made to bring their schools into line with modern systems. Schools can no longer be used as dwellings; *************************
